

KIDS IN THE GARDEN

4-PART WORKSHOP SERIES

There is a growing movement around gardening with children, eating locally, and teaching children how to make healthy food choices. Whether you are an experienced gardener or have never planted a seed, you'll find something here to extend your learning. We'll discuss garden curriculum, cooking with young children, and how to engage your school community around food. These workshops support schools participating in CACFP, but any early education program interested in gardening, incorporating culture through food, or cooking with their classrooms will find these workshops beneficial.
